

The Super Lawyer® Selection Process

The selection process for a Pennsylvania Super Lawyer® is a rigorous, multi-phase procedure. Peer nominations and evaluations are combined with third party research, followed by a screening process. Candidates' credentials are reviewed by the Super Lawyers® research staff and each candidate is evaluated on 12 indicators of peer recognition and professional achievement.

The nominated lawyers are then divided into different practice areas and a Blue Ribbon Panel reviews the list of nominated Pennsylvania attorneys based on areas of practice. Positive or negative point totals are then assigned for each nominated lawyer and then all scores from the first three rounds are totaled, giving a final score for each nominated attorney. The top lawyers within each size category are named as Pennsylvania Super Lawyers® for the year.
